TROFICAL FRUITS—DIFY ERENT VARIETIES, AND WHERE THEY COME FROM.—This is the season for all the different kinds of tropical fruits to be plentiful in our Northern clies. For the past few weeks the ships and smaller vessels trading with the West India Islands have been bringing in their cargoes of the rich tropical productions of that section—oranges, bettands, lemons, pineapples, etc. etc. Coming, as they do, before the regular advent of our spring 2nd early summer fruits and berries, they form a useful and luxurious adjunct to our bills of fare. This season we notice an unusual quantity of bananas upon the streets. Not for years has such a bountiful supply of this delicious fruit been in our cities. The different fruit establishments along the wharves are filled with bunches of them. Plucked from the trees in their green state, they ripen during TROPICAL FRUITS-DIFY TRENT VARIETIES, AND in their green state, they ripen during their passage. This fruit is obtained principally from Baracoa, in the eastern part of the island of Cuba, and together with the pineapple form the principal article of commerce with that port. Hipening about the commerce with that port. Ripening about the same time, these fruits are brought here together. The average number of busches of bananas brought in each schooner is about 4000. They are generally bought in Baracoa for about 40 or 50 cents in silver, and sell here at from $1 to $2. They are in season usually from March until the latter part of July. Much of this fruit is uncultivated, but the finest varieties are grown especially for the Northern market. At the present time there is not a corner stand, or hardly an old apples woman along our streets. hardly an old apple-woman along our streets, who have not got their supplies of this fruit, and at very moderate prices.

PINEAPPLES.

Pineapples are also getting to be as plentiful as bananas. The season for this fruit is the same as that of the banana. The greatest part of this fruit trade is with New York. It comes generally is the English coasting schooners, from the West Indies. The crops generally are extremely abundant, and sometimes, in a good year, such quantities are grown as to make them a drug. The American schooners tha engage in this trade generally make arrange ments with the planters to take their entire crops, and pay for them in sugar, flour, tea, rum etc. Large numbers, averaging at least fifteen per cent, of the pineapples, are lost through rot in coming here. This is more especially the case during the months of June and July, when the 'ruit being ripe is more liable to decay. In the earlier months they are not quite ripe, and the earlier months they are not quite ripe, and being picked when only semi-ripe, are just in good condition when they are thrown upon the THE OBANGES AND LEMONS.

which are almost a drug in our markets, are unusually fine this year. So pientiful are they that hucksters hawk them about in carts, and sell them by the measure—a thing that has very rarely been seen before. Every huckster in our market almost has her basket of oranges, and as we are writing at the present moment, there are two different hawkers crying oranges in the street. The fruit is obtained from several sources From the West Indies we get out supply during the winter months, while from Sicily and the islands in the Mediterranean we Sicily and the islands in the Mediterranean we obtain our supply for the spring months, and from Meuton a large supply is brought during the summer. The largest supply both of oranges and lemons are from the ports of Paiermo and Messima in Sicily. They are usually considered among the finest that are brought to the market. The trade from these parts is very large, there being a large number of vessels engaged in it. Probably as much as one hundred cargoes, averaging six thousand boxes to a cargo, arrive at New York and other cities during the season. The oranges from Sicily are not considered as fine as those from Havana, but the supply from the latter is so Havana, but the supply from the latter is so limited that it cannot compete with the Sicily orange. In India and Southern Asia the orange grows to the high perfection and degree of excellence. There are some varieties which grow in Siam and Burmah, that are cultivated exclusively for the use of the Kinz of these lands. sively for the use of the Kings of those lands, such as have been tasted by travellers who have been fortunate enough to obtain specimens, have been pronounced to be unapproached for their delicious flavor by any that find their way into commerce.

Oranges and lemons that find their way into our markets are generally plucked in their green state, so that they may ripen as they reach us. Those that are picked later in the season generally require to be picked over, as a large number, amounting fully to 10 per cent. is spoiled on the passage. They are usually sold in the places where they are grown at from 75c. to $2 per box, and readily bring from $3 to $5 on

COCOANUTS.

Another fruit that is grown exclusively in tropical countries is the cocoanut. The season this year has been remarkably good, and there are immense quantities in the city. Baracoa, Ruatan, Brezil, and the countries of the wouthern shores of the Mediterranean supply our markets with this popular fruit. There are many vessels that are specially engaged in this trade, and the numbers that are yearly brought trade, and the numbers that are yearly brought to this country are immense. A faint idea may be find of the extent of this business by seeing the immense piles of the nuts in our various produce houses and fruit importers places along the wharves. Cocoanuts are extensively used by confectioners in the making of pies and pastry and candles. One of the greatest uses to which it is applied here, and the principal one to which it is applied in the countries where it grows, is the expressing of the oil that the meat is very rich in. This oil is used for hair-grease and other purposes, forming an important article of commerce. The milk is fermented by the natives where they grow, and makes a powerfully where they grow, and makes a powerfully intoxicating liquor. In fact, the cocoanut i lied to so many uses that it is an invaluable article of domestic use to them.

EARLY FRUITS FROM THE SOUTH. Besides the fruits that are essentially tropical in their character, there are numbers o others that, ripening earlier in the warmer illmate of the Southern States, are brought here in advance of the regular season Etrawberries, cherries, and other fruit find their strawberries, cherries, and other fruitfind their way into our markets in the coasting vessels, touching at the sonthern ports of the Carolines and Florida. In a few days more we may expect to see cargoes of watermelons arriving. Indeed, as far south as Florida and New Orleans this juscious fruit is in the markets as early as April, and before this time they are abundant, and of very fine quality. So are the music-melons and cantelopes. The Southern melons are not generally considered as he musk-melons and cantelopes. The South-rn melons are not generally considered as nely flavored as those from New Jersey and from our own State, but there is ne peculiar variety peculiar to the Southwest, nat is unsurpassed. We refer to the "Orange ielon," principally grown in Missouri and reansas. The peculiarity of this fine fruit is nat the rind peels away from the ripe core, at as the skin of an orange from the sections that fruit. Besides this, the meat is very log and of a delicious flavor. As far as we sow, it has never been introduced in the addie States, although there is no reason to the st does. above crude sketch we have only given

There of treat amount of capital invested in the different branches of the business. As a general reg they do not confine themselves to dealing they do not confine themselves to dealing any particular variety of fruits, but reseconsignments of the different kinds as sy come into season. REV. Dr. Saunders, a commissioner to the REV. DR. SAUNDERS, a commissioner to the Presbyterian General Assembly from Philadelphia, acted according to his well-known record in zealously advocating patriotic measures in support of the Assembly's previous deliverances in behalf of the country, and in advocacy of increased educational and religious instruction of the masses within all our limits, from Alaska to Mexico. The Professor supported the plan of speedy bullon of the two ported the plan of speedy union of the two great branches of the Presbyterian Church—a natural unior, which it would seem cannot be delayed longer than the necessary adjustments recours.

FOR THE ENCOURAGEMENT OF AMERICAN Altrists, the collection, now on exhibition, of oil ; sintings, pastels, and crystal medalilons, numbering over 200, will be sold at auction on Weonesday, Thursday, and Friday evening, June 5, 6, and 7, by B. Scott, Jr., in the Gallery, No. 1820 Chesnut street. This is the last sale of the season, and we advise all to attend.

SLIGHT FIRE.-A slight fire occurred this morning in Shubrick's carpenter shop, on Fil-bert street, below Seventh, caused by the fire in a stove setting fire to a lot of shavings. It was extinguished by the application of two buckets of water.

LAYING OF A CORNER-STONE.—At 8 o'clock this morning the Independent Order of Red Men laid the corner-stone of their new building, now in the course of srection at the southwest corner of Third and Brown streets. The exercises were under the control of Mr. Kræutler. Committee of Arrangements—Christopher Lundosfer, Right Grand Chief, and Henry Presser, President of the Order. Between the latter a sort of colloquy took place regarding the stone, which was declared all right, and was then deposited in its place. Dr. Kellner, of the German Democrat, then addressed those assembled.

The following tribes were represented:—Tamany, No. 4; Montezuma, No. 5; Pocahontas, No. 6; Mohawk, No. 7; Shackamaxon, No. 10; Wissabickon, No. 12; Taima, No. 14; Tecumseh, No. 15; Susquehanna, No. 19; Wabash, No. 20; Pelouse, No. 28; Metamora, No. 32; Methala, No. 31; Cohockshok, No. 85; Wiennosa, No. 38; Logan, No. 42; Delaware, No. 81; Washington, No. 85; Logan Loger, No. 1; Seminola, No. 8.

The Mechanios' Brass Band were present, and discoursed several popular pieces of music, as were a number of German Singing Societies, who sang some very pretty and appropriate airs.

The Order of Red Men is an organization which has increased wonderfully during the past few years. It was instituted in the year 1812, at Fort Mifflin. At that time it was a political institution, and continued as such up to 1830, when politics were discarded, and the Order was reorganized for benevolent purposes, Order was reorganized for benevolent purposes. In 1849 the officers of the German Lodges met in Baltimore, and there it was argued by some that they were not properly treated by the English Lodges. At that time the Metamora tribe declared itself independent. The Order then numbered eighteen Lodges in Pennsylvania and six in Philadelphia.

In 1851 five more lodges withdrew, and the Order was subsequently established with the title of the Independent Order of Red Men. At the present time there are thirty-five German Lodges in Pennsylvania, twenty-two in Philadelphia, six on the Pacific coast, and a number in other cities. The total membership is put down at twenty-two thousand. The new building now being erected for the Order will cost $150,000. It will be eighty-five feet front on Third street and one hundred and three feet front on Brown street, and is to be six stories high.

After the ceremonies incident to the laying of the corner-stone, the procession moved up Third street to Girard avenue, and out the avenue to Washington Retreat, where a pic-nic is now progressing.

Tuesday in May, 1868. THE DOMES OF THE YO-SEMITE .- There is now on exhibition in the southeast gailery of the Academy of Fine Arts Bierstadt's last great painting of the "Yo-Semite." The doors of the gallery will be open to the public to-morrow morning. The private view of the painting will be given to-night, and we presume that the will be given to hight, and we presume that the Academy will be thronged with the elite of our city, anxious to do henor to this production of genius. It is pleasant to be able to speak enturished the proper time, we should be pleased to describe the subject and beauties of this majestic landscape. We shall defer doing so for the present. The painting is a very large one being some nineteen feet long by fourteen one thing some nineteen feet long by fourteen one, being some nineteen feet long by fourteen feet high, and nearly fills the north end of the gallery in which it is placed. At the other extremity of the room a high gallery has been erected, and the view of the plature from this elevated standpoint is certainly very fine.

The landscape was painted from the summit of the high morphism and as a natural result, the of a high mountain, and as a natural result, the of a high mountain, and as a natural result, the most favorable place to see the work is from a height looking down upon the view. The gallery which Mr. Scott has had crected suits the purpose admirably, and is quite a novelty in its way. The entire arrangements are well carried out, and reflect credit upon those who have charge of the undertaking. It is a very great treat for our connoisseurs and the public to have this fine work to contemplate, and we presume our citizens generally will appreciate presume our citizens generally will appreciate the facts to such an extent as to render the success of the exhibition an accomplished fact.

THE FISH TRADE - PORGIES. - Among the many branches of commerce that have been noticed in describing the coasting business of our city comparatively little notice has been given to the fish trade. Our shad and herring fisheries have received the greatest share of whatever attention has been bestowed. There is another branch that, from the circumstances attending its introduction to popular favor, merits more than a passing mention. We refer merits more than a passing mention. We refer to the Porgie and Sea Bass fisheries. It is not many years since the first named was used as an article of food. Scarcely thirteen years ago the only use they were put to was to gather them in great heaps and use them for manure. But no sooner did the first daring epicure eat the first norgie and pronounce it good than it the first porg e and pronounce it good than it began to grow in popular favor, and at this time it forms a prominent article of trade in our city. These fish are caught at a place called Slacon-nett, near Newport, Rhode Island. They run in nett, near Newport, khode Island. They run in the small bays to spawn during the month of May and the earlier part of June, and are then caught in Seine nets in great quantities. The firm of Cook & Myers have the entire charge of these fisheries, and several vessels engaged in the business. From Captain Myers, of the schooner Minerva, now lying at Arch street wharf, we learn that there are from eight to twelve cargoes of porgies and black fish brought to this place during the fishing season. When they are first taken they are packed away in ice in the hold of the vessels, about forty-five tons of lee being used to pack twenty to thirty tons of fish. It only takes from ten to fifteen hours to fill a vessel with these fi-h, so plentiful are they, and requiring from two to three days to reach this port, they are always perfectly fresh and good.

A STRANGE STORY .- It is a generally received A STRANGE STORY.—It is a generally received doctrine, that a man and his wife are considered one; but a case that came up before Aiderman Fitch last evening would seem to disprove it. A certain gentleman kept a saloon at Twenty-second and Spring Garden atreets, and finding business rather dull sold out, for $240, all right, title and interest in said business. Yesterday afternoon he stopped at a place Twenty-sixth and Girard avenue, and feeling tired, isid down and went to sleep, his fond wife and another woman being in the room, and his money in his pocket. When he awoke his riches had taken wings and flown away. He accused his wife and the other woman who had been in the room at the time of robbing him. After a hearing before Alderman Fitch, the wife was held in $800, and the other in $500 bail, to answer the charge of larceny.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF,-Three young men were arrested yesterday afternoon upon a charge of mallelous mischief. It appears that these youthful aspirants after immortality went into a house that is being built at the southeast corner of St. John and Wood streets, and engraved their names upon the front door in the manner and after the style of young America generally. The owner of the house, not deeming their names any ornamentation to his properly, brought charges against them for ma-licious mischief before Alderman Toland. They were held to ball to answer.

EVADING THE LIQUOR LAW .- About the first Evading the Liquor Law.—About the first arrest that has been made under the new liquor law was that of Mr. Peter Morton, who keeps a drinking saloon in Market street, above Forty-first. Last Sunday Peter dispensed liquors to divers thirsty customers, and at the time forgot to shut the front shutters whilst doing so. Officer Dornan, seeing something unusual, going on, looked in, and seeing swallows enough to warrant a summary proceeding, arrested Peter. He had a hearing before Alderman Allen yesterday, and was sentenced to pay $20 fine and costs, amounting to $2.50 more.

AN UNPORTUNATE CASE .- A very respectable looking young woman, about 21 or 22 years of age, came on to this city last evening from New York. She went to the American House, but acted in such a strange manner as to alarm the clerk, and then rushing out of the hotel, she ran across the street towards the State House. She was taken in charge by the police authorities, who will send her to New York this afternoon. She has a sister living there, although she would not give her name or her own.

RE-ELECTED.—Mr. George B. Miller, who has been the Secretary of the Port Wardens for the last four years, was yesterday re-elected to fill the same office for two years more, the vote being unanimous. The elections heretofore were for only one year, but as a compliment to the incumbent, who has given general satisfac-tion to our shipping merchants and the captains trading at our port, the term of office was recently extended to two years.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE .- The Committee appointed by the Legislature of this State to examine into the alleged extortionate charges of the railroads upon freight carried over their lines, met at the rooms, No. 803 Locust street, at 10 o'clock this morning. Three witnesses were examined relative to the charges made by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and to the discrimination; between different parties doing business on the road.

SENT TO THE HOUSE OF REFUGE .- Priscilla Wood, a colored girl of 14 years of age, was arrested yesterday afternoon, upon a charge of lareeny. She was employed as a servant at No. 723 Hubbell street, and having access to the bureau of her employer, stole several articles of jewelry and clothing. She had a hearing before Alderman Tittermary, who committed her to the House of Refuge.

PRESS CLUB. - A special meeting of the Press Club of Philadelphia will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock, to take appropriate action in reference to the death of Mr. Ernest C. Wallace, of the Evening Bulletin.

NORTH PLATTE, 300 miles from Omaba, June 3—Senator Wade and party arrived here tonight. To-morrow they will visit one of the United States forts in the vicinity, in company with Lieutenast - General Shorman. The weather is delightful.

They are enjoying themselves immensely. Being supplied with good rifles, they kept up a continual fire all day at antelopes and other game that are found along the track. The rails are laid over forty miles west of this place, but owing to the high water of the Platte River, travellers and the stages still leave here for Denver.

WALLACE, LATE OF "EVENING Bulletin."—A special meeting of the Press Club was held at the rooms at I, this after-noon, to testify respect to the late Mr. E. C. Wallace, for many years occupying an editorial position on the Evening Bulletin.

Wallace, for many years occupying an editorial position on the Evening Bulletin.

A committee, consisting of Messrs. W. H. Cunnington, J. D. Wattson, Louis Morwitz, L. Waln Smith, and W. J. Clark, Jr., were appointed to draft a series of resolutions.

They reported the following:—

Wherea, The Press Club of Philadelphia, desirous of testifying its deep sense of sorrow at the loss of its late valued and useful member, Ernest C. Wallace, that the memory of one so long chershed should be unforgotten, bears witness in this formal minute that it recognizes in the literary career of our late associate an example which the young members of the fraternity may imitate. Of him it may truly be said, that all who knew him did so only to esteem; and that he leaves behind no enemy to cast reproach upon his fame, and none to nurse the memory of an injury received at his hands. Our deceased friend was a native of Pennsylvania, born in 1821, became attached to the Evening Bulletin in the year 1854, and remained a member of the editorial staff of that journal down to the date of his death. During the active career now terminated, he was also an industrious contributor to several of our city journals, and in every capacity was regarded as a ready and competent writer. No more genial companion, no truer friend, no more amiable gentleman is to be found in the journalistic circle.

Resolved, That the members of this Club offer their errole.

Resolved, That the members of this Club offer their condolence to the surviving relatives of the deceased, and that this minute be entered upon the records of the Club. Messrs. Watson, Sinclair, and others made some touching tributes to his memory.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO A DISTINGUISHED Serious Accident to a Distincuished Tenor.— We regret to aunounce that Mr. Theodore Habelmann, the favorite German tenor, met with a serious accident at the Academy of Music inst evening. In the last scene of the opera, where "Fra Diavolo" is shot, Mr. Habelman, who personated the smuggler chieffain, fell from the cliffs upon which he seeks a hiding place from the gendarmes, with such force as to break his left arm. He was stunned by the fall, and was taken to the green-room speechless. We are glad to learn that Mr. Habelman is quite easy to day, and that there is avery reason is believe that he will not entirely lose the use of hig 11mb.
